

APPETIZING MEATS FORM FINE EXHIBIT AT TERMINAL SHOW

Fancy "Cuts," Appropriately Arranged, Attract Hundreds on Second Day of Market Food Exposition.

"Can you give me a half-pound of bacon sliced very thin?" "Yes madam, 60 slices to the inch, if you want it that thin, but 50 will be about right I think. A half-pound did you say?"

"Yes, but how in the world can you—"

With the shifting of a lever and the pressing of a button a bright, smooth-running machine begins to slice delicate strips of meat from a side of bacon. In a moment it is completed, the half-pound lies neatly piled up on a fresh piece of wax paper.

"There you are madam. Yes, 12 cents, thank you."

This conversation was overheard today in the Reading Terminal Market, the second day of the Annual Food Exposition.

Today is "Fresh Meat Day" and many of the meat dealers are offering their choicest cuts at reduced prices, while others are making a specialty of one kind or meat.

RESTAURANT'S BIG BUSINESS Many visitors to the exposition have become so enthusiastic over the exhibits that they have hurried to the Terminal Market Restaurant, where they might taste some of the products on display.

The result of this has been that the restaurant, or "Springs," as it is popularly called, has been thronged by persons who wished to find out just how the "things ought to taste."

Manager Craig, of the restaurant, was in despair.

"I don't know what we are going to do if visitors keep pouring in," he said. "We have been in the business for 60 years, but as far as I know this is the worst, or rather the best, crowd we have ever had. We always have crowds, but just look at 'em!"

Although meats are the feature of the day, many other displays are attracting attention. There are fruit and vegetable displays, poultry and dairy product exhibits and a host of others. In addition to the gay decorations of bunting and lattice work arches with their electric lights, the market is enlivened by music of the Franklin Concert Band.

Both yesterday and today visitors became so enthusiastic over the music that they began dancing, and avenue B, opposite aisle 10, became a market ballroom. Couples danced in and out of the aisles, skilfully avoiding vegetable displays or dodging the market trucks piled high with goods bound for the new free delivery department.

VEGETABLE EXHIBIT ATTRACTIVE. One of the exhibits which has attracted much attention is that of David H. Simon, whose display of vegetables and fruits is among the notable in the exposition.

The feature of this display is the apple exhibit. There are many boxes of choice fruit, each apple carefully polished and wrapped, banked on a big star. There are Newtown cooking apples and great red Stymian Wineapples; next to these are the Black Twigs apples and Roman Beauties. There are "Delicious" apples, the name being technically and literally appropriate, but no less beautiful and appetizing are the "Winter Beauties," the Spitzenburgs, the Jonathans and the Orletys.

E. S. VARE GAVE $445 TO REPUBLICAN LEAGUE

Senator Financed Former Washington Party Organization in Last Campaign.

State Senator Edwin S. Vare contributed $445 of the campaign of $475 received by the Progressive Republican League, which directed its work during the campaign toward the election of Doctor Brumbaugh.

The league was composed of voters formerly connected with the Washington party. According to one source, the campaign expense account, filed with the clerk of Quarter Sessions Court today, it was carried along financially by only three men. In addition to Senator Vare's contribution, Representative George W. Edmonds gave $25 and State Senator Augustus F. Dalx, Jr., gave $5.

Lorense Smith, 2128 West Susquehanna avenue, filed the account as treasurer. The expenditures were $447.72. George E. Hill was chairman of the league. Both the chairman and treasurer were members of the Washington Party Committee of the 32d Ward.

FIRE IN A MAIL BOX

Cigarette Stump and Not a Love Letter the Cause.

Smoke curling from a mailbox on the south side of Chestnut street near 11th today attracted a large crowd.

"It's a love letter," said one. "The burning words set it on fire."

"Let's get a hose," suggested another. But the police came, drove the crowd away and telephoned for a postal inspector.

The inspector unlocked the box and found two burnt envelopes and the stump of a cigarette. The fire had been smothered through lack of air after smoldering.

The explanation? The police think a visitor from up-State, with well-defined ideas on sanitation, mistook the mailbox for a garbage can and carelessly deposited the glowing "duck" in the box, rather than throw it on the street.

"MIKE AND IKE" DOUBLED; SERGEANT DALE PUZZLED

Rival Captains of New Year Club Receive Permits and May Lose Them.

Are there two Ike and Mike New Year's Associations? If not, is Ignatius C. Ranspacher the rightful captain of the club and J. J. Hines a mere pretender to the throne? Or, maybe, there are two captains to the one club. But in that case only one permit to parade should have been issued.

These are the questions and arguments which have almost caused Sergeant Harry Dale to quit the City Hall in despair today. On Tuesday he issued parade permits to both men. Ranspacher was the first of the two to receive a permit, but when Hines appeared he said he was the captain of the "original" Ike and Mike Association, and he, too, received a permit.

Yesterday Ranspacher reappeared. He protested vigorously against the granting of the permit to Hines and assured Sergeant Dale that there is only one organization and that he is the captain of it. He produced documents to prove his claim and asserted that Hines was a mere organizer of a number of members who tried to "split" from the original body. This, he asserts, has not been recognized and there is only one association.

Sergeant Dale was puzzled. He finally gave orders that Hines be sent for. The man will have an opportunity to substantiate his claims to the captaincy of the permit. But if he fails to do this the permit will be withdrawn. If Ranspacher and Hines show equal claims to the leadership both permits may be canceled.

PENN ARCHITECTS LOCKED OUT TODAY FOR WATERY WAR

Whole Department Punished for Battle in Classrooms and Halls in Which Fire Extinguisher Played a Part.

The Architectural Department of the University of Pennsylvania is not working today. As a matter of fact, the doors of the classrooms of the department are locked and no student is permitted to enter. This cessation of activity has been caused by a sudden outbreak of watery activity among the students, resulting in a free-for-all fight, and is intended as a penalty.

Yesterday, the students, evidently desiring to reproduce the fighting which Yael and Vitula, divided into hostile groups and fired away at each other to their hearts' content and the extreme discontent of the faculty. They did not use any bowltzers or 75-millimeter guns.

The juniors and seniors were armed with various missiles of lighter calibre, such as pans of water, bags of flour and large soaked-in-water chunks of blotter paper. These warriors were strongly entrenched behind doors, desks and other places affording protection. There they waited in grim silence, watching eagerly for the report of the outposts in the corridor.

Presently the enemy came along. The sophomores, dressed in frock coats, came down the corridor of College Hall. They did not evince any hostile intentions, but, on the contrary, simply desired to exhibit the love and admiration for Alma Mater, an annual demonstration. Whether or not the men in the trenches misunderstood their signals, the fact is that immediately a cry of alarm was raised.

"Gentlemen," shouted one senior, "the fate of the Republic is in your hands." And, to the credit of the juniors and the seniors, let it be said, they understood the significance of the moment.

The battle was stubborn, hard, bitter. The sophomores were at a disadvantage because of their conspicuous uniforms, the long black frock coats making an easy target for the flour bags. They fought hard against the odds. And then their strategists played their card. They ordered a retreat across another corridor, and after rallying their forces and armed with a fire extinguisher, they attacked the enemy, appeared through the classroom doors, in the rear of the allied senior and junior forces and opened a terrific artillery fire from the extinguisher.

The allies for a moment were dazed. They faced the fire bravely, charging the sophomore battery in close formation. Their general ordered a counter bayonet attack, which soon developed into a fist fight. The sophomore gunners were driven from their position, their big howitzer destroyed and their forces completely routed.

The result today is absolute peace and calm in the architectural department. The classrooms are heavily barred and the students, many of whom are nursing wounds, will be unable to work out a problem with their wares to prepare for Saturday and must stand the consequences.

Still the Bernhardt of the department maintains that war is a noble thing.

ORLADY CHOICE OF GOVERNOR-ELECT FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

Superior Court Judge May Have the Post if He Is Willing to Accept Appointment.

Superior Court Judge George B. Orlady may be the next Attorney General of Pennsylvania if he will accept the appointment. This is the almost unanimous opinion of Republican leaders. They said today Governor-elect Brumbaugh would be absolutely independent in naming the members of his Cabinet, and that his first selection would be Judge Orlady.

Although no intimation has as yet come directly from the Governor-elect, Republican leaders said he decided upon Judge Orlady long ago, and that the only obstacle to the appointment of the latter to succeed Attorney General Bell was Judge Orlady's own consent. Judge Orlady has intimated to several of his personal friends, they said, that he prefers to be a candidate for re-election when his term expires and that he does not care to resign his Judgeship next year.

Judge Orlady is one of Doctor Brumbaugh's warmest personal friends, politicians who are convinced that he is "clayed" for the appointment have pointed out. He was born in Huntington County, the home county of the Governor-elect, and has resided there almost continuously. The Governor-elect's term expires and that he does not care to resign his Judgeship next year.

GEORGE B. ORLADY Republican leaders believe he will accept the position of Attorney General of Pennsylvania.

He accompanied Doctor Brumbaugh on many of the latter's campaign trips this

BEATEN, BOUND, ROBBED AND THROWN OVER BRIDGE

Collector Victim of Bold Assault. Rescued by School Teacher.

MANTOLOKING, N. J., Dec. 3.—Bound, ragged and tossed into the waters of the Barnegat Bay by two highwaymen who knocked him from his bicycle, Douglas Egbert, 31 years old, would have drowned last evening had it not been that Joseph Gross, teacher in the Mantoloking District School, heard him groaning as he was walking over the bridge and hauled him to shore and safety. The robbers, after stealing $150 from Egbert, who is a collector for the Prudential Insurance Company, are believed to have made their escape in a boat.

The robbery took place about 5 o'clock at the time when all the residents of the west side of the bay are in the habit of crossing the bridge to the village on the east side to get their evening mail and newspapers.

Gross, hearing groans under the bridge, investigated and found Egbert with only his nose above the water. A bag had been tied about his head and both feet and hands were tied. The water was barely four feet in depth and Gross hauled him to the shore.

Egbert told Prosecutor Newman he was riding his wheel near the eastern end of the bridge when two men walked out toward him. One of them gave him a shove, throwing him from his wheel, while the other struck him over the head with a club or blackjack.

A posse of residents searched the bay shore for a mile in each direction and found the imprint of a boat's bow 300 yards north of the scene of the crime. Egbert's bicycle and his record book of collections were found near this spot, in front of a cottage in which fire of a mysterious origin was discovered two weeks ago. It is owned and occupied in

CUPID'S SHARE OF WAR TAX OFFICIALLY MADE CLEAR

Ten Cent Levy on Marriage Certificates Returned to Bride.

Certificates of marriage to be kept by the bride and not the license to marry will require a 10-cent adhesive stamp under the war revenue act, according to an interpretation of that measure made today by an official of the law division of the Internal Revenue Bureau at Washington. The opinion follows:

"A marriage certificate to be returned to any officer of a State, county, city or town, to constitute part of a public record, requires no stamp. A marriage certificate issued by the officiating clergyman or magistrate and given to the parties, if required by law, must be stamped at the rate of 10 cents."

This information clears up the doubt at City Hall as to the application of the war revenue act to marriage licenses. The license issued in this city is out by a performance. Half is returned to the bureau by the officiating clergyman and the other half is given the contracting parties and will require a 10-cent war tax.
